

cancelled). Fieldwork was undertaken from January- May of 1993.

1990 Assessment of Potential Social Impacts of a Biosphere Reserve on a Maya Community in Yucatan, Mexico. This research examined the potential social impacts of a planned ecotourist park and biosphere reserve, and the likely acceptance of government-developed economic projects by local Maya Indians in the town of Las Coloradas. Fieldwork was undertaken between June - August as a 5-person research team directed by Dr. Betty Faust.

PUBLICATIONS

Roper, J. Montgomery 2013 “NGOs and Community Development: Assessing the Contributions from Sen’s Perspective of Freedom.” In, D. Caulkins and A. Jordan. . West Sussex, UK: Wiley-Blackwell. Pp. 455-470.

Roper, J.M et al. 2009 “Development Diagnostic for the Community of El Silencio, Costa Rica,” a 75 page

J.M. Roper

Alumni College 2011,

June 2011,
Grinnell, Iowa.

February 2008,

. Presented at the Environmental Justice Symposium, Grinnell College.

September 2007

Presented September

6, 2007 at XXVII International Congress of the Latin American Studies Association (September 5-8), Montreal, Canada.

March 2007

(With John Frechione and Billie R. DeWalt) 1996

Summary of research and findings given in September at an open presentation at the World Bank hosted by the Latin America and Caribbean Region Environmentally and Socially Sustainable Development Sector Management Unit.

1996

Presented at the University of Pittsburgh Graduate Student Conference on Latin American Social and Public Policy.

April 1994

Paper presented at the Society for Applied Anthropology meetings, April 1994, Cancun, Mexico. Session Title: Latin American Forests: Policies and People.